

Trivia Afternoon at Temple Beth Am

More educational than a TBA board meeting! More laughs than a congregational meeting! You don't want to miss this one.

On Sunday afternoon, October 17, we will host a Trivia Night.....it's clear that Jews know way more useless information than anyone else so we are sure that they are going to turn out in droves to enjoy this special night.

And as a special treat, well-known Jeopardy champion (and trivia aficionado) Harris Stutman will be the guest MC. He will be assisted by a friend (his/her identity will shock you!). This will all be in good fun, even if we're not going to be on TV!

Soooo...here are the questions we know you want answered.

Q1: Will there be prizes?

But, of course there will be prizes.....we're not just whistling Dixie here! And, better yet, it's free to play!

Q2: Will we need to play individually? (I don't know anything about pop music or sports or literature or whatever.....)

Absolutely not.....the real fun is teaming up. Every team will have 4 or 5 folks on it, so if just one of you knows sports or movies, and another knows science or literature and another knows Judaica or current events, etc., etc., you're good to go! And you can claim (to everyone not on your team) that YOU knew all the answers!

Q3: Will there be buzzers and time limits and people yelling? I get nervous!

Not really. Each team will have time to discuss – and holler at each other ☺ – about each question before submitting their answer(s). And no one will know your answers unless you choose to tell them, so no harm in guessing! The MC will not be yelling at anyone, except whoever is supposed to keep his wine glass full!

Q4: Will there be food? We're Jewish, you know.

But of course! This is going to be a rollicking good time. Eating and drinking while you're hashing out the answers is all part of the fun. Who knows, maybe a food fight will break out! We hope that answers all of your questions and you are ready to join in on the fun!
